Lighting the Way Leveraging Human Potential

To whom it may concern;

While assisting a local law firm, the attorney was interested in someone who could assist with new computer set up, mapping to an existing network and software as well as a few other matters that required resolution promptly.

I contacted numerous people who I knew that did this type of work. The only one who returned the call promptly, was Marc. I asked him to e-mail a resume or something on his experience, which he did immediately. I went on to qualify him in our out of the role. He handled himself very professionally and answered my questions perfectly and I am very good at screening people, having done this for the life of my career. Next I had the attorney's office manager interview him via telephone and she approved the selection.

Marc was selected to do the work, while other prospective vendors eventually called and one simply never even responded, as this was the previous behavior of the firm's vendor.

Marc arrived on the job the following morning as it was not crisis for the firm and he completed the job requested of him fully.

I would highly recommend Marc for companies looking for someone with a positive and professional attitude and the experience to get the job done timely and with reasonable fees.

Please don't hesitate to contact me should you have questions.
